Emerging Formats: Designing Global Collaborations to Build Institutional Strategies

In an open exchange of experiences and expectations we are looking for emerging formats of international collaborations we have designed or can design. They are aiming at building, improving or strengthening our institutional internationalization strategies to face the emerging challenges as designers and design schools. In two sessions, practices, experiences, expectations and opportunities for emerging formats in international and global academic collaborations will be discussed and developed. The groups in the workshop will ideate and generate a range of possible formats for future collaborations (large scale platforms, small and agile settings as well as utopian and speculative settings). Expected outcomes are: possible “reference models” for the establishment and consolidation of international collaboration. Results will be shared and discussed by an international panel. With a keynote by Lorraine Justice, a welcome note by Mariana Amatullo and a workshop in groups for and with all participants of the session. The workshops will be led by Lorraine Justice, Lou Yongqui, Tadanori Nagasawa, Venka Purusthotaman, Mariana Amatullo, Philipp Heidkamp, Wolfgang Laubersheimer and Katrin Müller-Russo.
